NEW YORK, April 25, 2012 /PRNewswire/ --Educating your customers and prospects by sharing expertise and insight is at the heart of content marketing. According to a recent article by Joe Pulizzi, "Lethal Generosity: The Key to Your Online Content Strategy," doing so on a consistent basis – and even divulging marketing secrets in the process– is a must to strengthen your competitive advantage.

The article, now available on PR Newswire's small business resource center, discusses the shift away from the traditional thinking that marketers should hide competitive information and why sharing your 'secret sauce' could positively impact your position as an industry expert.

PR Newswire's newly enhanced PR Toolkit is a comprehensive resource that provides small businesses and entrepreneurs the tools to develop an affordable public relations plan that helps them increase search engine rankings, generate interest from potential customers, engage with key audiences and grow their businesses. The toolkit features relevant content such as informative white papers, interactive webinars and how-to articles and premium access to educational resources, as well as the opportunity to take advantage of special offers designed specifically for small businesses.
